Introduction

The City of Ottawa values the contribution that local not-for-profit cultural organizations, professional artists, and heritage workers make to our community, and it annually invests in arts, heritage, and culture through 17 Cultural funding and awards programs. These programs are managed by the Cultural funding support unit. All funds, except those administered through Purchase of service agreements, endowment funds, or honoraria, use a peer assessment model in the evaluation process, involving professionals who are active within their cultural communities.

This report outlines all the applicants who were awarded funding in 2023, as well as the peer assessors who reviewed the applications. In total, the City processed 602 submissions and provided over $11.9 million in funding through 401 allocations through cultural funding programs: 358 contributions, 21 awards, 2 Purchase of Service Agreements, 4 Rich Little Endowment Fund payments and 16 honoraria.

All funded activities meet the objectives of the program through which they were funded. Detailed information about cultural funding programs and their objectives can be found on the City of Ottawa website or by contacting infoculture@ottawa.ca.

Cultural funding support unit values

The Cultural funding support unit assists independent, local, not-for-profit organizations, as well as professional artists and heritage professionals in the presentation of arts and heritage events and activities that reflect a broad representation of communities within Ottawa.

The City of Ottawa supports cultural activity that is inclusive of Ottawa's diverse community, including people from a diversity of ancestries, abilities, ages, countries of origin, cultures, genders, incomes, languages, races and sexual orientations.

The City of Ottawa encourages submissions from First Nations, Inuit and Métis people, IBPOC (Indigenous, black, people of colour), persons with disabilities and members of the 2SLGBTQIA communities.

The City of Ottawa is built on unceded Anishinabe Algonquin Nation Territory. The Cultural funding support unit honours the Anishinabe Algonquin Nation as Host Nation.

The Cultural Funding Support Unit is committed to supporting cultural activities that respond to the Calls to action of the Truth and reconciliation commission.

The City of Ottawa recognizes both official languages as having the same rights, status and privileges, and therefore accepts applications in both English and French.

2023 Funding priorities

Following the peer-assessed evaluation of submitted proposals, the Cultural funding support unit prioritized applications from the following Indigenous and equity-seeking communities:

- Anishinabe Algonquin Nation
- First Nations
- Inuit
- Métis
- IBPOC (Indigenous, Black, People of Colour)
- People with visible and invisible disabilities
- Non-ambulatory persons
- D/deaf people
- Refugees / Immigrants / Newcomers
- 2SLGBTQIA
- People living in poverty
- Rural residents
- Francophones
- Seniors / Older adults
- Women+
- Youth

The City of Ottawa recognizes that people identify themselves in many ways. Terms used to self-identify are continually evolving. With this understanding, the Cultural funding support unit uses terms recommended by community members through various consultations.

Arts funding program

The objective of the Arts funding program is to spark and support the creation, production, presentation, exhibition, and dissemination of the literary, performing, visual, and media arts, as well as independent film and video.

Open to all disciplines, operating and project funding is made available to professional and amateur organizations. Funding from this program addresses the need to support arts education, arts training, community-based artistic activities, and professional groups that develop local arts audiences and provide valuable arts programs and services.

2023 was a reporting year for organizations receiving two-year operating funding, and therefore, they were not assessed in jury.

Equity and inclusion in the arts fund

The Equity and inclusion in the arts fund aims to reduce barriers and advance artistic expression within Indigenous and equity-seeking communities by providing opportunities for self-expression, capacity building, visibility, and celebration. This program was revised in 2021, as per the recommendation of the Cultural Funding Support Unit's Equity and inclusion committee, to offer clearer objectives, easier access to municipal funds and assessment criteria, and application questions that are more reflective of Indigenous and equity-seeking applicants.

In 2023, the composition and the role of the Committee continued to evolve, but the goal and objectives remain the same: to bring together community members reflecting priority groups identified in the City of Ottawa’s Equity and inclusion lens to provide insight into issues and barriers facing equity-seeking communities when accessing cultural funding programs, and to work collaboratively towards a more responsive and accessible funding format for all. The 7 recommendations brought forward in 2019 by the Committee continues to guide this work.

It empowers youth to identify needs and gaps in their career development, and to support initiatives that lead to or benefit the applicant’s career in arts, heritage or culture. Designed, implemented and assessed with a ‘for youth by youth’ approach, this program continues to engage, develop and empower young local cultural workers and artists.

Karsh award

Ottawa City Council established the Karsh award in 2003 to honour the late photographers, Yousuf and Malak Karsh.

In 2018, the Karsh award was reviewed through a targeted community consultation. The award, which is bestowed every four years, is to be presented to a mid-career/established local artist for their outstanding body of work and significant contribution to the artistic discipline in a photo/lens-based medium.

Over the subsequent three-year period, the laureate will be invited to hold an exhibition of their work at the Karsh-Masson gallery, mentor within the local artistic community and participate in the Karsh Continuum exhibition.

We were happy to announce Christine Fitzgerald as the 2023 Karsh award recipient.
